JEROME LESEMANN, PhD

Jerome Lesemann is a Professor in the Earth Science Department at Vancouver Island University. His specialty is Quaternary geology and the sedimentology of glacial deposits. He has research experience in glacial paleoenvironments of the former Cordilleran, Laurentide, and Fennoscandian ice sheets and is interested in applications of Quaternary geology to groundwater and mineral exploration. He is particularly fond of glaciofluvial deposits and has yet to meet a gravel deposit he didn't like.
